Best of ag country on display at Polk County Fair

If it's hot and harvest time, the Polk County Fair must be right around the corner. The three-day county showcase kicks off Thursday and runs through Saturday with everything from barns full of prize animals to cooking contests to a goat obstacle course on the schedule.

This year's theme, "Moo at the Moon," is anchored in the Great American Eclipse, a mere eight days following the conclusion of the fair.

But don't worry, the Polk County Fair has plenty to see here on the ground.

Tina Andersen, fair manager, said FFA and 4-H are challenging her creativity in making space in the animal barns.

"The numbers are rolling in and they are rolling in big," Andersen said. "Not sure where we are going to put them all."

Live entertainment will be on stage all three nights, and the 2017 performers are all a little bit country.

"We changed things around quite a bit and brought in some bigger acts," Andersen said. "For the first time in years, we brought in The Zaniac Comedy Show."

The Oregon Old Time Fiddlers are featured at 1 p.m. on Thursday.

Pierce Avenue, husband and wife Tony and Jaime Pierce, play at 6 p.m. Thursday, followed by Showdown, headlining after the Rough Stock rodeo on Thursday evening.

On Friday, Pierce Avenue plays at 6 p.m. Nate Botsford takes to the stage at 8.

Jessie Leigh closes out the fair Saturday at 8 p.m., with her blend of rock and roll and country.

The comedy show will be on stage all three days. Magician Louie Foxx will dazzle the crowd on Thursday at 4 p.m.

This schedule has a few changes, with the annual truck and tractor pull canceled, and American Thunder Monster Truck and Mega Truck Show added to Saturday night's slate of events.

"They can expect a wreck every eight seconds and lots of action," organizer Wayne White said.

Quickly becoming a fair favorite, the Hell on Hooves Rodeo is back on Thursday.

This year's rodeo will feature bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bull riding, barrel racing and muttonbusting. Expect to see some of the best rodeo performers from the area putting on a show.

Polk Soil & Water Conservation District, which usually has a display and information at the entrance, has moved its booth inside the fair and will present information on small animal care and an introduction to beekeeping.

Kids have entertainment choices galore out on the playground.

Bouncy houses, an obstacle course, water balls, an inflatable playground, mechanical bull, and slide will be set up in one part of the lawn, while Rickreall Fire's firefighting-themed obstacle course is featured in another.

New this year are Dragon Theatre, offering on hands-on activities and puppet shows, and Houston's Dinosaurs Alive.

If you see a dinosaur running loose through the fairgrounds, don't be surprised. It's all part of the interactive display and photo booth making custom T-shirts.

"He's going to be set up in the kids area and he's got this great set up, where he has a Jeep, so it looks like Jurassic Park," Andersen said.

Barrel racing is one of Thursday night's Hell on Hooves rodeo events.

Animals exhibits will fill the fair's barns.

Open class offers culinary treasures at the fair

You can find tables filled with fruits, nuts and vegetables at the fair. These tomatoes were disqualified because drawing on entries is not allowed.

Strolling through the Polk County Fair wouldn't be complete without admiring the entries in open class.

Tables filled with fruits, nuts and vegetables — including the monstrous and odd — is a treat for even the nongardener.

"It has to be something you grew yourself this year, on your property or on a rental property," said Bobby Haynes, superintendent for fruits, nuts and vegetables. "The only thing you can have from last year is nuts."

It takes a special mix of hard work, dedication, and good weather to get an award-winning entry, especially when it comes to fall vegetables such as orange pumpkins. Some gardeners have been babying their plants since January or February, Haynes said.

"This year I'm not sure what we'll get," she said. "Tomatoes are just starting to get ripe, so I don't know what we'll get in the line of tomatoes. The cucumbers are coming in, so we may get some of them."

When it comes to some fruits, the heat has made them come and go quickly.

"Blueberries came in late, but the heat made them go away really fast," Haynes said.

She said she has some in the refrigerator, but they aren't show quality anymore.

"It's all got to be fresh," Haynes said.

The zucchini has taken off, but don't think you can win for the largest one — the squash is not accepted for the monstrous category.

Haynes has worked with the Polk County Fair in some capacity off and on since the early 1970s. A retired Master Gardener, she has never had the time to submit her own bounty to the fair because she's so busy helping with the fair itself.

"We put stuff in there out of the Master Gardener garden to fill space and give people an idea of what to think about or what to look for, or to help there be more variety," Haynes said. Those entries don't get judged, though, she noted.

"We usually get over 200 — and sometimes over 300 — in the fruits and vegetables," Haynes said. "We have a lot of people who have passed away who were really involved in bringing things in and competed against each other."

Now their grandchildren are the ones entering the fruits and vegetables, she said. She also tries to get the kids involved in decorating.

"I like to get the younger people interested in it, because if they're interested in it, it encourages the older people to help them do it," Haynes said.

County fair has a kooky collection of contests

If you love old-fashioned, or just plain kooky contests, the Polk County Fair has you covered — from determining which baby has best outfitted stroller to which goat has the best costume.

Is your baby the cutest baby ever? Of course. Every parent thinks that — and they're all right! Rather than try to dispute that, the Beautiful Baby Contest gives babies the opportunity to shine in the areas that they are cutest.

To that end, there are categories for both "bluest eyes" and "darkest eyes," as well as "baldest baby" and "longest hair," among others. Once again, this year there will also be a category for "Best Dressed Stroller," for crafty parents and shy babies.

The list of prizes varies between categories, but every winner is sure to walk away pleased.

"There are lots of prizes, all different," said Tina Andersen, Polk County Fairgrounds manager and organizer of the Beautiful Baby Contest. "We have toys, onesies, baby T-shirts, some antique books. ..."

However, Andersen said that the best part of the contest is always "watching the goofy things parents do to get their baby to smile for the Biggest Smile contest."

Registration is free and begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday. The contest will begin at 10:30.

You don't have to have a baby to join the fun. Two new contests test baking skills on one of two favorites: chocolate cake or apple pie.

The new additions to the fair's open class competitions gives people a chance to pit their secret family recipes for the two dessert classics against those of other bakers.

You don't have to register ahead of time for the contests, just bring your best effort to the fair on Saturday.

Entries are accepted starting at 12:30 p.m., and judging starts at 2.

Saturday morning's Beautiful Baby Contest is of one of many entertaining contests

Grand prizes are $50 gift certificates to sponsors Ovenbird Bakery in Independence (apple pie) and Nicky B's Cakes of Dallas (chocolate cake).

For those just wanting to watch a zany competition, head to the small show arena at 7 p.m. on Thursday to take in the goat obstacle course and costume contest.

Yes, you read that correctly, costumes on goats.

The obstacle course has goat-and-kid teams — anyone who has seen this event know goats don't always make good teammates — trying to be the best at weaving their way through a series of challenges.

4H/FFA Youth Livestock Auction takes place at 3 p.m. on Saturday.

Calling all bidders to the livestock auction

It's the culmination of months spent raising animals, of early-morning and evening feedings, and chores squeezed in between school and other activities: The 4-H/FFA Youth Market Auction.

Children and teens whose animals are in the auction already had their animals judged by experts, now they will see how they do on the market at the Polk County Fair auction on Saturday afternoon.

The auction will again be held at 3 p.m. on Saturday in the Swine Barn.

The afternoon start time allows auction attendees to enjoy other parts of the fair afterward. Be prepared get to the auction early for a good seat — the swine barn is usually packed — and to wait for a while for the animal you want to bid on.

The auction is open to anyone — and people are free to donate if you don't want or don't have room to take the animal home. Bidders can sell the animal back to the owner or give it back if they don't want to eat it.

Fair auction

What: 4H / FFA Youth Market Auction.

Where: Show area of the Swine Barn on the east side of the Polk County Fairgrounds.

When: Saturday at 3 p.m. Bidders and buyers are encouraged to arrive early to receive a bidding number and a good seat.

Animals auctioned: Steers, hogs, sheep, goats, turkeys, chickens, rabbits.

Country bands set to invade county fair

Get ready to bring the country. The Polk County Fair will play host to a variety of bands from local favorites to up-and-comers — all with a little country flair — to help crank up the festivities.

The Oregon Old Time Fiddlers will perform first Thursday at 1 p.m. followed by Pierce Avenue at 6 p.m.

Pierce Avenue features husband and wife Tony and Jaime Pierce, who come together for unique, soulful, southern-fringed harmonies.

Showdown, a high-energy country band, returns to the fair to headline after the rodeo on Thursday evening at 8 p.m.

On Friday, Nate Botsford takes to the stage at 8 p.m.

Jessie Leigh closes out the fair Saturday

Rodeo ready to 'raise hell' at county fair

Event expected to entertain fans with exciting action featuring champions from the northwest

Ride 'em cowboy. The Hell on Hooves Rough Stock rodeo returns Thursday at 7 p.m. As cowboys and cowgirls compete, expect to see fans flock to the rodeo arena for some high-speed excitement.

"They can expect a wreck every eight seconds and lots of action," organizer Wayne White said.

This year's rodeo will feature bareback riding, saddle bronc riding, bull riding, barrel racing and muttonbusting. Expect to see some of the best from the area putting on a show for fans.

"Champions from all over the Northwest will be on hand to compete," White said.

The rodeo, which has been a fixture at the fair since 2015, has proven to be one of the most popular draws.

"The county fair and rodeo are both family entertainment for the entire family from 8 to 80, there is something for everybody," White said.

White thinks the reason is simple. There's something inherently exciting about seeing a cowboy and a bull at odds.

"The reason rodeo is timeless, it's man against beast — bulls that weigh 1,800 pounds against a cowboy who is 140 pounds," White said.

While the action is ramped up to 11, the muttonbusting provides a thrill for the young ones — and a good laugh for adults.

"It's the only form of legalized child abuse," White said with a chuckle. "The reason being every one of those little kids are riding 9 miles an hour just before
